

TALKSHOW W BOY

Talkshow Boy is the musical pseudonym of bedroom-buttonpusher Adrian K-Sahara (AKA Adrian Trajstman). His music is frantic and romantic – ridiculously hyperactive, glitchy avant-pop full of urgency.

Inspired as a youngster by the do-it-yourself ethics and cutesy imagery of bands like Bis, Cub and Tuscadero, Talkshow Boy began writing one-minute guitar ditties based around topics such as current crushes, kittens, samurais and cold weather. After discovering experimental electronic music, the guitar numbers slowly reduced and Talkshow Boy's bedroom yelping started to be accompanied by a frenetic and slap-dash orchestra of blips and stutters.

He has self-released the cassette & cd 41-song platter of 'Perestroika Love', in early 2003, a wide-ranging set of short, frenetic tracks with recurring themes of Ukraine, monks, spiders & revenge, spanning recording periods that almost qualify it as a career retrospective. He followed this with the more cohesive, also self released CDEP 'Blood-Sexy', a darker but still excited affair about vampires, cinematography & kleptomania, seeing the increase of slight hip-hop touches to the enormous head-shaped cauldron that composites Talkshow Boy's music. Pocketclock offers you the new two-track single, Ice Police (b/w Blood Squad) as the first release on our singles club.

Adrian is also a member of the five-piece keyboard punk band Cattle Of The Sun, who have played with acts such as Jihad Against America and Mr Hyde & the Jeckylls.
